With his poetic style and dazzling technique, Augustin Hadelich has established himself as a rising star among the new generation of violinists. Winner of the 2009 Avery Fisher Career Grant and gold medallist of the 2006 International Violin Competition of Indianapolis, he also received the competition's special awards for best performance of a Romantic concerto, Classical concerto, Beethoven sonata, violin sonata other than Beethoven, Bach work, commissioned work, encore piece and Paganini caprice.

Hailed as a "brilliant violinist" in the New York Times, Augustin made his debut with the Cleveland Orchestra on August 30, 2009. Other recent debuts include the Houston Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, Pacific Symphony, Tokyo Symphony, and recitals at Kioi Hall (Tokyo), the La Jolla Music Society, and Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Augustin made his Carnegie Hall orchestral debut in January 2008, performing the Brahms Double Concerto under Miguel Harth-Bedoya with cellist Alban Gerhardt and the Fort Worth Symphony; he returned to Stern Auditorium in March 2008 for his captivating, highly acclaimed recital debut. In his third appearance at Carnegie Hall during 2008, he performed Mozart's Violin Concerto No. 5 with the New York String Orchestra under Jaime Laredo on Christmas Eve. Other orchestral engagements include the symphonies of Alabama, Columbus (OH), Fort Worth, Grand Rapids, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Kansas City, New Orleans, Louisville, Santa Barbara, Syracuse and the IRIS Chamber Orchestra in Memphis, among others. Outside the United States, Augustin has performed with the Capetown Philharmonic, Deutsche Radio Philharmonie/Saarbrücken- Kaiserslautern, Dresdner Philharmonie, Museumsorchester Frankfurt, Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional de México, Staatsorchester Stuttgart, Südwestdeutsche Philharmonie Konstanz, and the chamber orchestras of Bavaria, Berlin, Budapest, Cologne, Hamburg, Kiel, Lucerne and Toulouse. He has collaborated with such renowned conductors as Miguel Harth-Bedoya, Günther Herbig, Christof Perick, Christoph Poppen, Stefan Sanderling, Michael Stern and Mario Venzago.
