

The 2018 San Francisco State University Summer String Workshop is designed for music educators teaching orchestra, including those who are not string players themselves.

Dates: June 25–29, 2018, from 8:00am to 4:00pm.

Location: the SFSU Creative Arts Building, Holloway Ave.

Morning courses include small group lessons, practice time, and classes on teaching strings in elementary, middle, and high school. Afternoon courses include chamber music with the Alexander String Quartet, teaching vibrato in the heterogeneous strings class, and orchestra music reading sessions.

The general string-playing public is cordially invited to participate in the reading sessions free of charge.

You may sign up for morning courses, afternoon courses, single courses, or the entire program. University credit is available.
